Accreditation

New York Medical College is chartered by the Regents of the State of New York, and all of its degree programs are authorized by the New York State Department of Education and accredited by the Liaison Committee on Medical Education, the Accreditation Council for Graduate Medical Education, Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education, the Middle States Commission on Higher Education, the Council on Education for Public Health, the Council on Academic Accreditation in Speech-Language Pathology and Audiology and the Commission on Accreditation in Physical Therapy Education.

Family Education Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) (20 U.S.C. 1232g; 34 CFR Part 99)

In accordance with the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974, the information on this transcript is provided with the understanding that the recipient will not allow any other person to have access to this information without the written consent of the student.

To Test for Authenticity

This transcript is not valid and official unless signed by the Registrar and bears the University seal. It is printed on light maroon watermark paper; a translucent diamond pattern should be visible when held toward a light source. The paper contains a thermochromic ink spot at the bottom left corner. When heat is applied, the square will fade and then gradually return to normal. If photocopied, the word VOID appears multiple times across the face of the document. A photocopied or black-and-white document is not an original and should not be accepted as an official institutional document.

GPA Calculation

The GPA is determined by dividing the total number of grade points earned (quality points) by the total number of graded hours attempted (GPA-Hrs.)

As part of the most recent conversion, the previously separate GPAs of students who have taken classes in our graduate schools of Basic Medical Sciences and Health Sciences and Practice are now combined. This is in line with the best practice followed by most colleges and universities, where the cumulative GPA includes all courses taken at the same (in this case, graduate) level. The Doctor of Medicine program does not employ a GPA.

Converted Records

As of April 2016, the Touro College and University System and its subsidiaries implemented a new student information system. In so doing, the formatting of student transcripts changed. This will certify that the transcript format produced on or after May 2, 2016, official or unofficial is the result of the change to the new system.

New York Medical College has had two prior computerized student record conversions: The first in 1985 and the second in 2001. With all three conversions, the formatting of student transcripts changed, as did the subject code abbreviation associated with each course. Course numbers and titles have remained consistent with a few exceptions.
